You did it!

Congratulations

You see, I told you these challenges would be fun.

Seriously, well done for getting through them. By now, you're probably getting quite familiar with how to work with events, how to listen for them, and how to access the event object to get additional properties and methods (like `clientX` and `clientY`).
But we're only just getting started.

In the next sections we're going to learn a ton more, including node hierarchy, bubbling, event delegation and more.

Enjoy.
